

LESSON 5 Is Being a Christian Enough?

Noel Watson's business was successful and growing. He did not mind hard work and expected the same from his employees. He had no patience with laziness and did not hesitate to reprimand an employee who was not producing enough. And Noel was a Christian.

He was active in his church and brought the same zeal to his responsibilities there as he did to his job and business. But many times he felt his way of doing things was resented by other Christians. Often sermons seemed to speak against his actions while they appeared to praise the results his actions produced. Noel was forced to admit to himself that though he could defend his actions as being right, sometimes he did not feel pleased about them on the inside. One thing he was sure of: there was a conflict in him that had not been resolved.

Maybe you have asked yourself, What is my true self? Am I what the Bible says I am, or am I what I feel I am? Even when we study the Scriptures it may be hard for us to understand what we are. Are we soldiers or peacemakers? Courageous or meek? Patient or aggressive? In this lesson we will compare what the Bible says we are with our own experience and actions. We will discover what God considers to be important. Then we will study how we can actually become what God expects us to be. This is our true goal.

The Plan

- A. How God Sees Us
- B. What Is Important to God
- C. Fulfilling God's Expectations

The Goals

- 1. Describe the way God sees us.
- 2. Identify what God considers to be most important.
- 3. State why we can become what God expects us to be.

A. HOW GOD SEES US

Goal 1. Describe the way God sees us.

What the Bible Says

We may hear some Christians talk about what they are “in Christ.” It almost seems to be a language of fiction or fantasy. But in fact the Bible does describe our position.

In Ephesians 1 we are told that we have blessings in the heavenly world (v. 3). We are holy and without blame (v. 4). We have been chosen to be God's people because of His purpose and decision (v. 11). In chapter 2 we read that we are alive with Christ and have been raised with Him in the heavenly world (vv. 5–6). God has made us what we are (v. 10), and we are fellow citizens with God's people and members of His family (v. 19).

We find these same ideas in 1 Peter 2:9. We read there that we are a chosen people, royal priests, and a holy nation. And there are many more descriptions besides these. What higher names or titles could be suggested?

Application

1 Read each of the verses referred to below. Circle the letter in front of the reference to a verse that gives another description of what we are “in Christ.”

- a) Ephesians 2:22
  - b) Ephesians 4:1
  - c) Ephesians 4:17

What We Experience

Yet in our actual experience we find a struggle. We are subject to tiredness, hunger, thirst. We have ambition and dreams. We feel driven on the inside and find attractions on the outside. Temptation to sin is not taken away. When we think we have conquered in one area we find that the battle has just shifted to another.

Some of us as children of God do not find ourselves in perfect harmony with other believers. We experience fear, hostility, frustration. God seems to give us names with meanings that reach to the sky. We are all too well acquainted with our limits, and they are more identified with the earth than the sky.

In addition, our actions seem to come more out of our earthly nature than our heavenly one. It would be easy if really praying one time were enough to solve our problems. But instead we often find that our prayers did not solve the problems at all. We still faced temptation and frustration.

How do all these difficulties relate to finding God's design for our lives? It is relatively easy to make “life” decisions—such as deciding whether to be a teacher, pastor, or doctor. But God's will for us includes more than simply making life decisions. It includes all our actions. The real difficulty is how to do what we already know we should do.

We place importance on things that are unimportant and treat things that are important as if they were not. Our relationships become complicated. Our goals show that we are double-minded. When we have trouble making life decisions it is because our daily decisions are not good. It becomes evident from this, then, that knowing about our position in Christ is not enough if it has little to do with our attitudes, actions, goals, or desires.

Application

2 Perhaps you have realized that in some areas of your life you have difficulty living according to what you are in Christ. Opposite each area listed (left side) mark an X under None for no difficulty, Some for some difficulty, or Much for a great deal of difficulty. As you continue to study, expect God to show you ways of solving the problems you have indicated.

	None	Some	Much
Moving towards worthwhile goals
Overcoming selfish motivations
Making correct decisions
Dealing with temptation
Relating well to others
Concentrating on important matters

What God Sees

After children are grown, parents often remember only the good times of their children's earlier years. The difficulties of raising them are forgotten—the nights without sleep, the childhood sicknesses, the vomiting, the toilet training, all the unpleasant times. Only the moments of closeness and affection are remembered. A child who was difficult to train is often remembered as an angel. Is this how God sees us—through biased eyes? Absolutely not!

God has an unyielding, absolute standard of righteousness. He calls us “saints,” “His children,” “priests.” When God looks at us He sees us exactly as we are. He sees our natural appetites—which are not sin—but He also sees the old or sinful nature which takes a lifetime battle to conquer. He sees selfishness manifested in a variety of ways. He sees good beginnings that too often end in less-than-hoped-for results.

God saw Noah with faith to survive the flood (Genesis 7:6–10), yet He also saw him drunk (Genesis 9:20–21). He saw Moses in his faith (Exodus 14:13–14) and in his anger and impatience when he smote the rock (Numbers 20:11–12). He saw David writing great psalms or songs of praise and worship (2 Samuel 22, Psalm 18). Yet He also saw him with Bathsheba (2 Samuel 11). He saw Peter with his inconsistencies (Matthew 16:17, Luke 22:54–62) and Paul with his impatience with Mark (Acts 15:37–40). And which of the twelve were faithful to Christ through His suffering? None! He was alone (Matthew 26:56).

Imperfect, failing saints. But still saints! God sees us as clearly as He saw the people we read about in the Bible. And if our lives were recorded in as vivid detail as theirs are, the same pattern would be visible. It is visible to Him.

Application

---

- 3 The most complete description of how God sees us is:
- a) we are risen with Christ and are God's children. Our position is that of priests and fellow citizens in His family.
  - b) we are a holy nation, chosen by God to belong to Him. Yet we also have times of failure and inconsistency.
  - c) we are human and subject to failure. We have times of frustration and often our relationships with others are not right.

B. WHAT IS IMPORTANT TO GOD

Goal 2. Identify what God considers to be most important.

We have considered what the Bible says we are and the facts of our daily experience. But what is important to God? Does He place more value on our position as saints or on our behavior? To answer these questions, two things must be considered.

The Work of Christ

God places priority or highest value on the work of Jesus Christ—on His righteousness, His perfection, His obedience. Both Scripture and reason indicate this clearly.

The message of salvation is that while we were still sinners Christ died for us, the just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God. He is the cause, while our coming to God is the effect. His righteousness causes our righteousness!

So when God calls us saints (and we do not feel or behave as saints), He is not seeing a false picture. He is seeing the final result of a process—the cause of which is already clear and complete, and the effect of which is already perfectly assured. He is not limited to time in the sense of needing unfolding knowledge. He sees the end (or the process) from the beginning. He sees the end in the beginning.

Application

---

- 4 God can call us “saints” or “holy ones” because He
- a) knows that we want to serve Him.
  - b) does not see our faults and failings.
  - c) sees what we will become.

It is reassuring to consider the cause of our salvation. Colossians 1:15–27 states the priority the work (and person) of Christ has in the plan of God. Christ has delivered us; our redemption is in Him. He is the visible likeness of the invisible God; He is the creator of all things. He existed before everything and is the upholder of all. He has first place (priority) in everything, including what God sees. He is the cause, actually.

God has chosen to make known among the Gentiles the glorious riches of this mystery, which is Christ in you, the hope of glory.
(Colossians 1:27)

Your Response

The result of the cause (Christ and His work) is assured: sainthood is consummated, the glory of the sons of God is revealed!

The creation waits in eager expectation for the sons of God to be revealed. (Romans 8:19)

How great is the love the Father has lavished on us, that we should be called children of God! And that is what we are! The reason the world does not know us is that it did not know him. Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been made known. But we know that when he appears, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. (1 John 3:1–2)

If the time needed for the process is not considered (since God is not subject to it), then cause and effect happen together. That is, in God's view, we already are what we will be.

The assurance is great, yet your part is important. You remain significant, not by adding to the work of Christ, but by remaining in the process.

If you continue in your faith, established and firm, not moved from the hope held out in the gospel. This is the gospel that you heard and that has been proclaimed to every creature under heaven, and of which I, Paul, have become a servant. (Colossians 1:23)

Application

5 Suppose a believer you know were to ask you this: What does God consider most important—what Christ has done for me or how I respond to His work? Circle the letter in front of the best reply.

- a) God considers the work of Christ to be more important because He knows that our human weaknesses make us unable to participate in the process. This means that God does not consider our response to be significant.
- b) God considers both to be important in different ways. He considers Christ's work to have priority as the cause. Our response is important because we must remain in the process for the effect to occur.

We recognize the difference between what God calls us and what we view ourselves to be. Our goal is clear—His cause, His plan fulfilled in us. But now we must discover how we can cooperate to make God's view of us become true in our experience. We must find out how we can be the saints that we are.

C. FULFILLING GOD'S EXPECTATIONS

Goal 3. State why we can become what God expects us to be.

The wrestling, the battle of the Christian experience, the tensions of the Christian life all arise because we are trying to find an answer to this question: How do we daily choose God's design for us?

Most of the instruction of the New Testament relates to this question. Its passages that tell us how to become Christians are short, its passages that tell us how to act like Christians are comparatively long.

The ability to change comes from two basic storehouses of strength. The first is the reality of the work of Christ in His defeat of the law of sin and death. The second is the particular power of good to overcome and replace evil.

Christ Was Victorious Over Sin

The first reason why we can fulfill God's design in our lives is because Christ won the victory over sin. Sin no longer has dominion over us. It has influence, but not dominion.

How real was the victory and work of Christ? Christ's work was not an idea or thought. It was a real event; it happened at a certain time in a certain place. And it was a real battle. There was real blood shed, real death, real resurrection, real victory. It was real because the power of sin was real.

In the history of humanity, no one has ever escaped from the power of the law of sin. Paul wrote, "For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23).

This is enough evidence of its reality. But though there is evidence to prove the reality of this law, there is also evidence to prove the victory Christ had over it. The resurrection was witnessed for forty days by many people (Acts 1:3; 1 Corinthians 15:3-8). There was no question. Christ had risen!

The power of sin was based on Adam's fall. The victory over sin is through the obedience of one, Jesus Christ.

Consequently, just as the result of one trespass was condemnation for all men, so also the result of one act of righteousness was justification that brings life for all men. For just as through the disobedience of the one man the many were made sinners, so also through the obedience of the one man the many will be made righteous. (Romans 5:18-19)

This victory is the "life" triumphing over the "law," hope over hopelessness, the purpose of God over the foolishness of man, love over impulse.

You can have righteousness and freedom from the law of sin because, in a real sense, Christ died for your sin. He was your substitute. Satan's method of tempting you is to discourage you, make you doubt the reality of your victory. He uses intimidation, accusation, and deceit. But you are free!

Application

---

- 6 Sin no longer has dominion or rule over us because
  - a) Adam's disobedience brought sin upon the whole human race.
  - b) the real victory of Christ overcame the real power of sin.
  - c) the Bible explains to us how to act like Christians.

Good Overcomes Evil

The second reason why it is possible for us to fulfill God's design in our lives is because good (from God) triumphs over evil (from Satan). Scripture reveals this fact to tell us how to defeat the old or sinful nature that causes so much heartache.

Sinful practices are not just stopped. They are replaced. Sin is not creative; it is perverse. That is, it is the wrong use of energy, skills, and action which could be used in a right way. So the Bible gives several examples to show the good that will replace evil. These good deeds are not just superficial actions; they are expressions of the new nature. Our part in the warfare that rages between flesh and spirit is to replace evil with good.

The old nature lives on falsehood (the gift of Satan, the father of lies). The new nature expresses itself in truth. So we are to stop lying and replace it with speaking the truth.

Herefore each of you must put off falsehood and speak truthfully to his neighbor, for we are all members of one body. (Ephesians 4:25)

Application

7 Read in your Bible the verses referred to. Below the description of each evil action, describe the good action the verse says should replace it.

- a) Ephesians 4:28; stealing
- b) Ephesians 4:29; using harmful words
.....
- c) 1 Peter 3:9; returning evil for evil
.....
- d) Galatians 5:16–26; doing the evil actions our human nature wants
.....
- e) 3 John 11; imitating what is bad

This process shows a pattern that is found throughout Scripture. Satan has always tried to put evil action in the place of good. That is what brought about the Fall (Genesis 3). We are to put good action in the place of evil.

To act rightly is not to become self-righteous. It is to use the power of our mind and will on the side of the new nature which is created in holiness. As God works in those ideas that are beyond our power, we turn our power and ability away from doing evil to doing good and giving expression to the “Christ in us.” This is the process of becoming (and we are all still in that process).

When we accept the fact that we are in that process, several results will follow. We will find it easier to accept others who are still in the process. We will understand our own battles better. We will be strengthened in resisting temptation by knowing how to respond. We will use the power of habit, a power that Satan so often uses, to make ourselves stronger. That is, we will develop good habits to replace the evil ones of our sinful nature.

Application

---

- 8 We have studied some reasons why we can fulfill God's expectations. Circle the letter in front of each statement that gives one of those reasons.
- a) God expects us to be completely righteous and perfect in all that we do.
  - b) Sin has influence over us, but not dominion.
  - c) The good that comes from God is victorious over the evil that comes from Satan.
  - d) The battles of the Christian life arise from our trying to become what we already are.
  - e) We share in the real victory that Christ won by His triumph over sin.

It is possible for us to fulfill God's expectations. We can be successful because Christ has won the victory over sin and the power of His life in us can overcome evil with good.

Application

---

- 9 As you conclude your study of this lesson, take a few moments to read 1 John 3:1–3, 9–10 in your Bible. Then in your notebook, write answers to the following questions.
- a) What hope do we have (v. 2)?
  - b) Why do we not continue to sin?
